(Evaluation of the college is necessary to increase the quality of higher education. Colleges are getting to increase the quality of education through evaluation. Every institution strives to get good grades in NAAC. Libraries must use modern technology to be reader-oriented in modern times. Success depends.

Introduction:

The role of college library is very important in NAAC assessment. The library is the heart of the college. So the college library should be well equipped. It should contain supplementary reading materials along with other audio-visual aids. Knowledge materials needed by professors, students and visitors should be made available to them. Various services are provided in the library for that. Keeping the collection of books, reference books, magazines, periodicals, newspapers available in the library in an orderly manner. Also different services should be effectively provided by the library to the patrons. Today's age is the age of information and technology. The library must be computerized. Library software is required for that. By using it the library can be computerized and automated. It is very important to have all these things in the library for students.

Objectives:

- Strictly inspecting the quality of education in various educational institutions
This is to evaluate.
- To evaluate the functioning of higher educational institutions and their curricula.
- Teaching and research in higher education institutions by creating an educational environment Promoting quality improvement.
- To guide them to improve the quality of management administration, day to day work in the college

Necessary matters for NAAC assessors :

- Does the library have a separate building
- Is there an advisory committee for the library
- Total number of books, reference books, periodicals in the library
- Has the library been computerized?

An ambitious international declaration of economic policy and the Sustainable Development Goals

Prof. Dr. G. Siddharth, Nagdive
Assistant Professor
Vidyadharani College May 2021

Abstract

In this study, it is emphasized that environmental quality should be considered while carrying out modernization. Not only can we achieve it in development of the country by increasing the national income, but at the same time there should be a collective thought that the current production process will not have an adverse effect on the productivity

Introduction

If a country is to achieve sustainable development, there must be a balance between current production processes and future needs. All people want the same things. Clean air, Clean water. Sustainable developers consider having a say in decisions made on the constituents, and providing equal opportunities for people with decisions and perspectives. Bringing about change by focusing on both the present and the future is the management of the human, natural and economic value of time.

Union of Mahasa and its changes in the living conditions of the people of the nations. Aggressive efforts for economic interests. Trade wars will make the life of man difficult only financial gain and Capitalism has led to crisis on two factors. Contrasting effects of historical region development it soon hence the over-generalized use of the measure has resulted in waste. Therefore, it is very important to broaden the concept of environmentalist approach to economic, social and cultural development.

Parents need developmental tools without compromising their ability to meet their needs. Sustainable development has emerged as a guiding principle for global long-term development. The tripartite aspects of economic development, social development and environmental protection should be considered in strategic development. Basic conditions

Some of the basic conditions for achieving sustainable development are as follows: Reconciliation of natural methods of production and human needs, equality and social justice, different internal options for its development, economic efficiency, proper harmony with the environment. The main reason for this is the neglect of the environmental principle in the management of the country, the legal system and the media. Environment structure is not prioritized in the development process. Hence the continuity of natural resources. Adequate statistics of exploitation and the resulting natural perturbations are not available.

Financial crisis and its consequences conditions of the people of the nations

Global Challenges

Income and human development sources do not receive proper statistics on environmental impact and there is no accounting for the productivity of the unorganized sector. So the environment

Restructuring the economy based on ecological principles is a need of the modern times Prof.

Dr. Siddhartha Jivana, Snake Rights

Assistant Professor Vidyabharati College, Selu, Wardha

Abstract
 In this study, a special emphasis has been laid on the fact that environmental reality should not be forgotten while planning development. Not only can we achieve stable development of the country by examining the national economy, but at the same time there is a need for futuristic thinking to ensure that the current production process does not have an adverse effect on the future production.

Key words

Production methods, human needs, social justice, sustainable development, ecological balance.

If the country is to achieve sustainable development, current production processes, investment practices. Knowledge should balance current and future needs. People all over the world have equal needs for clean air, clean water, equal economic opportunities for children to be safe and secure, as well as shelter, lifelong learning, a sense of community and sustainable development. Getting an opportunity to speak. There is also a need to bring about changes focused on both the present and the future. Humane, natural and economic great management by ensuring that there will be enough for the future, aggressive efforts for the financial interest of the nation, following the greed of future superpowers.

Who will make trade wars the life of man. Both economic benefits and capitalism are often detrimental to the environment. It is seen that the negative impact of the new medium of development on the historical region is increasing. This has resulted in a more common use of the resource thus increasing the economic, social and environmental impact. It is very important to broaden the concept of sustainable development from an environmental perspective. The piano of the future belongs to Vikas-Savaneer without compromising its ability to meet its own needs. Sustainable development has emerged as a guiding principle for global long-term development. Development, social development and environment protection need to be considered in the process of development.

Some of the basic conditions for achieving poverty development are as follows: Reconciliation of natural methods of production and while designing the economy, in management, environmental principles, legal justice human needs, equality and social justice. Traditional resources have been neglected system, media, neglecting the environment, neglecting the development of the working system are not given priority to the environmental structure. Hence the continuous natural self. Sustained exploitation and loss of nature are not properly accounted for National Income and Expenditure Accounts have not been considered two purposes, Standard of living and changes in it, global challenges, income and human development, the environment is not getting proper data, so how much of the environment has been done in the country?
