Best Practices of the Institution

Best Practice No.1

Title of Practice: Students participation in Co-Curricular Activities

---

Goal:

To provide proper grooming to students so that they understand the importance of ethics and values in the formation of human character. Instill in students a sense of admiration for our nation's culture and traditions. To instill in students a sense of respect for teachers, superiors, and fellow humans. To instill in students a sense of compassion for animals. To give them the opportunity to express their own values and attitudes. To educate students about our heritage and national goals in order for them to become more sensitive and responsible citizens. To protect, preserve, and conserve the natural and cultural environment, as well as to use natural resources wisely. To instill empathy in students for society's marginalised groups. To teach students to be cautious and conscientious about their health, hygiene, and cleanliness, as well as their writing, reading, and communication skills, and they will learn about event management.

The context:

In today's world, there is a great deal of moral degradation in society. Today's youth are perplexed as a result of the society's shifting value system, which has left them in a bind. As a result, in order to instill ethics and human values in tertiary students, it is essential that the students' attitude and approach to these attributes be properly conceived. Value-oriented education focuses on developing students' individual personalities so that they can shape their future and deal with difficult situations at any point in their lives with ease. As a result, value education should not be regarded as a separate discipline, but rather as something that should be ingrained in the educational system. The 1986 National Education Policy, as well as the New Education Policy 2020, have consistently emphasised the importance of values in the education system, in which teachers play an important role. Furthermore, students should be taught the significance of developing scientific temper and environmental values. Co-curricular activities are a rich resource for value education, and many learning and sharing activities can foster values. Students learn to work in groups and develop values such as tolerance, cooperation, nationalism, a sense of responsibility, empathy, thoughtfulness, and so on through these activities. Aside from that, students learn life skills such as communication, critical thinking, self-confidence, and others that will help them in today's competitive world. These energising activities transform higher education institutions into true nurturing homes for responsible citizens of the nation, rather than mere teaching establishments.

Practice:

Co-curricular activities assist students in developing self-esteem, overcoming shyness and inferiority complexes, and identifying their potential abilities and skills. Activities such as kavay lekhan, Elocution Competition, Essay Competition, and others were held to instill values in students, and the college also celebrated the birthdays of national leaders such as Mahatma Gandhi, Savitribai Fule, Abul Kalam Azad, Swamy Vivekananda, Dr. Babasaheb Ambedkar, and others. We are committed to improving our students' scientific temper by organising various science-related events and activities, as well as commemorating days such as National Science Day. In addition, plantation drives, awareness rallies, and cleanliness camps were held.

The table below lists some of the activities that are carried out to instill values.

Activities	Values
Celebration of yoga day and health awareness programme.	To inculcate the values of mental and physical well-being.
wild life conservation programmes, celebration of wild life week.	To sensitize students to safeguard the environment
Programmes on Fundamental Duties.	To instill values for becoming responsible citizens.
Cleanliness drive	To impart values of cleanliness for our environment and our life

Celebration of important days for example Reading inspiration day , Sadbhavna divas , Mahaparinirvan divas , National science day , youth day and festivals	To promote ethics and traditional values, communal harmony and understanding and national integration.
Awareness campaigns on AIDS and other diseases like cancer,sickle cell,and mosquito borne diseases.	To make students and society aware about the causes and remedies of these fatal diseases.
Lectures on value education, meditation, ethics and moral values	To raise the social, human and moral quotients of students.
No tobacco campaign, deaddiction awareness lecture and celebration of international drug abuse day.	To make students aware about the danger of addiction and drug abuse.
Voter's day celebration and voter awareness campaign.	To make students to know the importance of casting vote as their primary and constitutional right and also to prepare them to spread awareness.
Celebration of birth anniversaries of great personalities M.K. Gandhi, Savitribai Fule and Swami Vivekanand etc.	Celebrate birth anniversaries to follow the foot-prints of these great personalities and imitate them in life

Evidence of Success:

1. There has been a significant shift in students' behaviour and attitudes towards these aspects of life.
2. Because the programme is entirely organised by students, they are exposed to event management techniques at the same time.
3. The students' development of a scientific temperament and positive thinking is noteworthy.
4. Life achievement is envisioned in these programmes.
5. Students are forced to learn concepts that are not related to their regular subjects.

Problems faced:

When scheduling activities, issues such as managing schedules for multiple classes and students frequently arise. As a result, a teacher must make adjustments to the timetable for carrying out the activities. Because they are ungraded and do not provide academic credit, students regard them as a burden, and some students believe that participating in co-curricular activities automatically leads to poor academic performance. Furthermore, due to academic pressure, students focus solely on one subject. Health education sessions are held when the people of the village are available. Another obstacle is the cost of attending a government-sponsored college. The administration's attitude is favourable to pursuing this quality-adopted enhancement and extension activity. More departments are overcoming them by submitting these types of proposals. The main impediment is finance and government audit procedures. There are no guidelines, and the institution's head is asked for comments during the audit for these activities. However, in addition to the college contribution, the staffs contribute voluntarily to the program's success.
